

Today's energy system paradigm is based on a unidirectional energy delivery philosophy

A sustainable energy system is a smarter, multidirectional and integrated energy system that requires long-term planning for services delivery

